Behavioral Technology Special Interest Group

Chair: Christina Whalen (Jigsaw Learning)

Purpose: Increasing trends in technology have meant more assessments, interventions, and research are employing the latest technology to help consumers. Although there are a great deal of technology-based tools being purchased and implemented in schools, homes, workplaces, and in the community, many of these tools are not based on the principles of behavior analysis and thus, do not necessarily offer what they are intending. Several products exist that are grounded in applied behavior analysis (ABA) and it is expected that a large increase will be seen in the upcoming years. The purpose of the Behavioral Technology SIG is to increase awareness around technology in ABA, promote and educate ABA through the use of technology, discuss standards for product development and implementation for the ABA community, and to provide a forum for those interested in technology in ABA for sharing ideas and developing accepted practices for this type of ABA. This new SIG hopes to bring together a larger group of members, publish a new website in 2009, and plan for presentations on this topic at future ABAI events.

Kentucky ABA (KABA) First Annual Business Meeting

Chair: Thomas L. Sharpe (Educational Consulting, Inc.)

Purpose: Currently, there does not exist a formal State of Kentucky ABA Chapter. Many practicing applied and experimental practitioners of behavior analysis, and university level behavior analysis faculty, have sought local and regional support through adjacent state organizations. Through Spalding University's implementation of a new graduate program with primary focus on the professional preparation of aspiring Board Certified Behavior Analysts (BCBAs), and their commitment through a complement of faculty devoted to engaging in the principles, practice, and dissemination of behavior analysis in all of its forms, this meeting provides a forum for all interested professionals to engage in the organization of a new State of Kentucky ABA Chapter. For additional information, and for those who may not be able to attend, please contact: Tom Sharpe, Professor and BCBA Program Director, 702-241-1718, TomSharpe23@yahoo.com; or David Morgan, Professor and BCBA Program Faculty, 502-585-9911, dmorgan@spalding.edu.
